DAMAGE SUITS TO GROW OUT OF WRECK OF LINER TITANIC

Lawyers Ready to Start Proceedings to Recover for Loss of Life.

opinion held by lawyers that the Harper law which limits recoverable damage to the value of the ship and the passenger and freight receipts of the particular voyage on which the disaster occurred would not apply in this case.

Maurice Leon, a Wall street lawyer, whose cases have been largely of international character, has been retained in behalf of the heirs of some of the French victims and has already begun to study the various legal aspects of the disaster.

There is a precedent in a Supreme Court decision, written by present Chief Justice White, upon the occasion of the Bourgogne suits, in the following clause of the court decree:

Bourgogne suits, in the following clause of the court decree:

"Every steamer now on the ocean shall be provided with such number of lifeboats, rafts, life preservers and drags as will best secure the safety of any persons on board."

As there is physical evidence of the shortness of lifeboats on the Titanic, Mr. Leon believes that excellent grounds exist for damage suits.

As to the agregate recoverable amount, even if it were based upon the previous provisions of the Harper law, the sum will probably exceed $15,000,000.

The total monetary loss from the disaster has been estimated as high as $35,000,000. Among the effects of the rich first class passengers were jewels said to be above $5,000,000 in value.

Because of the wealth and earning capacity of such men as Col. John Jacob Astor, C. M. Hays, president of the capacity of such men as Col. John Jacob Astor, C. M. Hays, president of the Grand Trunk raliroad; Isador Straus, the multi-millionaire merchant; Benjamin Guggenheim, and others who perished in the disaster, the amount demanded in damage suits could be of almost any value. Mr. Leon does not believe that $250,000 would be asked for in each case, in the event that suits were entered by the heirs at all. Because of the importance of the first-class passengers who lost their lives, Mr. Leon believes that the awards will be very large.

Attorneys for the White Star line and he International Mercantile Marine have already begun to prepare defenses. Damage suits will be bitterly contested on the ground that the White Starline had accepted the Titanic from her builders with assurances which led them to believe that she was practically unitable.

The Bath-Tub Mystery by "RITA"

Begins Serially in

THE CAVALIER

For Saturday, April 20

HE BATH-TUB MYSTERY" is one of the most complicated mystery stories ever written. "RITA" has set into this novel the fog, the mystery, and the romance of a London night. In fact, the story begins at the darkest hour. The silence is broken by a cry of fear and agony rising from the trembling lips of a man who, clinging to an iron fence, has difficulty in supporting himself upon his palsied limbs. Something he had just seen has struck terror into his heart.

Get this week's number of THE CAVALIER and read the story for yourself. There's a generous instalment in this number.
